3. Such a statement follows:

a) The major functional categories should be restricted to the classical classification of intelligence, namely: production, collection, and dissemination ~~for production~~

b) Intelligence activities under the category "production" should be classified as follows:

Estimate Current.

1. Political, cultural and sociological

2. ~~Military~~

3. Naval Force

4. Air Force

5. Economic

6. Scientific

7. Technical

*1. geographic (to include
intelligence & related functions.)*

c) ~~Alternative 1:~~ No attempt should be made to classify production additionally as basic, current, and national intelligence. Such a division, if made, would be unrealistic inasmuch as in some agencies the employment of personnel on these respective categories of intelligence will vary with the intensity of international relations and crises. There is no formula thus far discovered or used among the agencies which could indicate the actual allocation of resources to those categories of intelligence.'

Alternative 2: There should be a sub-classification in each of the classifications listed in (b) by basic, current and national. In general, it appears that the bulk of intelligence production resources are allocated to basic intelligence (including both the NIS and detailed analytic research), with relatively small resources on current and national estimating.

d) The category "collection" should be classified as overt and covert.

e) Administrative costs for intelligence should be ~~pro-rated rather than set forth as a separate item.~~

CONFIDENTIAL

f) In connection with those activities, whether by intelligence or by operations, which serve purposes other than intelligence, the approximate intelligence cost should be broken out and listed. This is particularly applicable to certain problems in collection, but is not necessarily restricted to collection.

4. It was understood that the group would endeavor to prepare a final paper suitable for IAC discussion on 15 December, and that such paper could elaborate and discuss both that classification system ultimately recommended and those classifications not recommended.
